BY TRACI BONNEY

When one hears the phrase "property cleanup," what comes to mind? Derelict buildings? Burned-out homes?

Complaints about properties in Bay St. Louis do include these hazardous structures, but concerns are not limited to them, according to city clerk of council Michael Cuevas. She said complaints vary from district to district, but the trash littering one person's lawn is just as upsetting to his neighbor in one subdivision as the gutted house is to an adjoining property owner in another.

The city receives complaints about many problems, ranging from burned or collapsing buildings to derelict vehicles and appliances littering a yard, to trash and garbage strewn across a

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission engineer Carlos Cordon pronounced all work on the Calgon effluent line by Twin L Construction of Pass Christian satisfactory and complete Monday.

He recommended the commission pay the $57,206 final payment to Twin L pending publication of legal notice.

The Twin L contract with the commission totaled $298,369.

Cordon said even Twin L's bonding company wrote a letter of final approval on the work performed.

The commission reviewed bid proposals by five companies for the intended wastewater treatment plant extension at Port Bienville.

The bids varied from $151,583 to $127,548 on specified materials.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory JOBY NECAISE May 18, 1973 Feb. 1, 1990

Your 19th birthday brings back so many joy-filled memories — memories of other birthdays when you were just a boy. Into our lives come sweet memories to gather and to keep. When we think of all the things that would have never been — if you had never been. We celebrate the day you were born. Every joy in life is a gift, only loaned to us for awhile.

The memories of you that come to mind today are warm and happy ones.

There are so many things, Son, that time can never

And even though you're gone now, and many things have changed, time will never change our love in every memory of you.

So sadly missed

To all our friends and relatives: We thank you for your prayers, your kind words, your cards, flowers, and food. We thank you for the love, kindness and attention you gave our mother, Rose Carver Embry, during her illness.

We give special thanks to Father Peter Mockler and Father Cuthbret O'Connell. Our Lady of the Gulf: Father Henry McInerney, and Mrs. Marie Deegan, eucharistic minster, Annunciation Catholic Church, the OLG Altar Society and the kind and understanding employees of Miramar Lodge, Hancock General Hospital and Edmond Fahey Funeral

He explained his career choice saying, "The discipline, integrity and honor of the service appeals to me. I chose the Air Force over the other military branches because I want to be a pilot."

Barber added, though the Navy offers the opportunity to be a pilot, he did not care for the idea of living on an aircraft

He stated, "First I must complete the Academy's four-year program. If I qualify to be a pilot, I have to go to flight school for two years.

Following these years, his commitment to the Air Force will be for eight years of service.

Barber began his application to the Air Force Academy the summer prior to his senior year of high school.

"I assume I met their standards of high grades, requirements for participation in school and community, and where only one nomination by a congressman is required, I received two, one from Sen. Trent Lott and one from Congressman Gene Taylor."

Out of an approximately 15,000 applications a year, the Air Force accepts only 1,000 to 1,400 students.

Barber, 17, is the second child of the Rev. Nathan and Patricia Barber, formerly of Bay St. Louis.

His older brother, Nathan Jr., is a student at William

Todd Barber

Carey College, and a younger brother, Patrick, is a freshman at Bay High.

He will graduate this month as co-salutatorian with a current 4.34 scholastic average. Bay High has a weighted grade point average which permits students to earn additional credits above the standard 4.0 through completion of advanced courses.

He has been Bay High's Star Student of the Year, and a member of: National Honor Society, two years; student council, four years; YMCA Youth Legislation Group, four years; Hancock County Physics team; Spanish Club; French Club; Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD); Student Athletes Detesting Drugs (SADD); track team, senior year; and soccer team, junior year.

His extra-curricular activities include the First Baptist Church youth group and two years with the Police Explorers. In addition, he claimed the highest ACT score this year at Bay High with a 29. Barber said of his visit to the Academy, "It is a nice campus, better than all the other college campuses I've been to." He stated it was huge, containing four football fields and six baseball fields. He described a big marble square where the young men gathered. "It was marked with red lines dividing walking areas for underclassmen and upperclassmen. Freshmen can't walk

Andy Elchos, conservation officer, reports there has been an increase in the number of folks who have been taking young wildlife from the wild.

This includes birds, owls, hawks, raccoons, aligators, waterfowl, etc.

There are many birds that nest on the ground, such s kildeer, quail, turkeys, etc.

It is against the law to have any wild animals without a permit.

Residents should leave the animals alone and let nature take its course.

Serious incidents should be reported to wildlife authorities and let them take action.

Persons cutting down trees should also be cautious. On Thursday a tree was accidentally cut down with a redtail hawk nest. The persons cutting the tree didn't realize there was a nest in the tree.

The nest contained two fledglings, and one was killed when the tree was felled.

Man is constantly shrinking the habitat for wildlife, and concern has to be shown before we have no wildlife left.

CONGRESS

Mississippi awarded grant, vital to war on drugs and crime

Mississippi will soon receive $4.7 million federal grant from the Department of Justice to help the state fight its war on drugs. The award is made available under the Edward Byrne Memorial State program and Local Law Enforcement Assistance Programs.

The programs were first authorized in the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1986 and 1988 named to honor a New York City officer slain in the line of duty. In response to requests for assistance from state and local g vernment and claims that the nation's crime and drug abuse problem required coordinated local, state and federal efforts, Congress enacted the Byrne programs.

For a majority of states, these programs represent the primsource of federal criminal justice assistance to state and local government.

Congress appropriated $475 million for the programs. Mississippi's award represents more than a 300 percent in rease over the amount the state received in 1989, the first year funds were available

under the Anti-Drug Abuse Act. To date, Mississippi has received a total of $15.6 million through the program.

The program's formula will allow state and local officials to carry out new and innovative law enforcement programs that will inevitably improve the way South Mississippi's criminal justice system functions and most importantly, enhance drug control efforts.

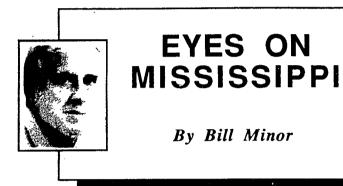

For instance, some of the award will be used to fund community crime prevention programs, enhance services for forensic specialists, improve criminal history record keeping and reduce court delays.

State officials also plan to use the funds to update a Drug Prosecution Resource Center which will assist South Mississippi's prosecutors in researching and preparing drug cases for prosecution.

As South Mississippi law enforcement officials have proven over the past few years, these outstanding programs are vital to curbing drug use in our communities and school yards. And because of this, I am optimistic Congress will continue to fund these programs. The reason South Mississippi is making progress in our war on drugs is because these programs not only involve law enforcement officials, but also involve the communities in which officers patrol the streets and neighborhoods. When law enforcement agencies and communities implement a coordinated plan of attack against illegal drug activity, the community always prevails.

'Initiatives for the Nineties' launched by Auditor Patterson

An expert on getting more value out of government for less money, certainly an idea both conservatives and liberals should applaud, came through the Capital city the other day, leaving Mississippi politicians wondering if it could happen

David Osborne, a Bostonbased author who has been an adviser for officials ranging from governors to presidential candidates on how to better manage governmental resources, was the star attraction to launch State Auditor Steve Patterson's "Initiatives for the Nineties" project.

Patterson has put together two task forces made up of professionals from the private sector, serving without pay, to come up with recommendations on more efficient use of the state's assets, and privatization of some government services.

From his own staff, Patterson has also put together a performance audit team to make efficiency studies, beginning with the Jackson Public School

Osborne told an audience which included business and professional leaders, as well as several dozen legislators, that the fiscal crunch which states and local governments have experienced in the 90s won't go away when the present recession is over.

"It's going to continue until the end of the 1990s," he said, creating an urgency to "do more with less" or enact tax increases which are increasingly unpopular with already-angry voters.

The people, Osborne said, "don't want more government, or less government either. They want better government." Thus a fiscal crisis can have a beneficial result if it causes government to reform and get more for the dollar.

Osborne, whose book "Reinventing Government" (with Ted Goebler as co-author) is becoming a "bible" of public officials around the country, has been a consultant to Gov. William F. Weld of Massachusetts, a Republican, and Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida, a Democrat. Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, the probable Democratic presidential nominee, has asked him for advice on his governmental reform campaign plank.

The system most states use of giving agencies money "in little pots" by line item budgets, he said, only encourages them to spend all the money in each pot. "If they don't spend it, then they will have to give it back, and be fussed at because they asked for too much," Osborne said.

Consequently, he said, there is little incentive for the managers of public agencies to create mission-oriented programs which can be measured by what they accomplish.

Rather than continue bureaucratic systems that are not working, Osborne called for a more entrepreneurial style of government which is innovative and constantly searching for ways to improve services and bring them closer to the

All of this, he said, requires leadership and an ability to articulate a vision," which impinges on the political arena, and the persons who are given responsibility for operating the government.

For a relatively poor state such as Mississippi, Osborne said, the focus must be on education and training "because the quality of your workforce is the key to your economic future.

The state has to choose if it is going to compete in the wage market with "Minnesota, Japan and Germany, or compete with Mexico, Malaysia and other low-wage countries."

In Mississippi, as a smaller state, it should be easier to "reinvent" government, Osbor-ne said, "because you do not have to deal with the bigger organization that you have in a bigger state."

But what Osborne is not able to bring into his calculus of how to make government work better in Mississippi is the rigid resistance to reforms, to change, which is indigenous to the Legislature and most governmental structures here.

Hopefully, there is going to be a new sense of urgency born of the ongoing fiscal crisis that inefficient, ineffective governmental systems no longer will go unchallenged.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

A history lesson

While back in Mississippi, one recurring question was, "What would happen if we have three candidates for president in the general election and, as a result, none of the candidates gets a majority of the electoral vote?" Answer: it would force the election, for the first time in many, many years, into the House of Representatives. I don't think that this will happen, and I certainly hope that it won't. I do believe on November 3 that we will have a president elected by the electoral votes. I should emphasize that it is not the popular vote, but rather the Electoral College vote, that elects the President of the United States. But, to see what would occur if no one received enough votes to win, I went to the U.S. Constitution.

Under Article II, Section I of the Constitution, it states that if no candidate gets a majority of the Electoral College vote then the House of Representatives picks the president from the deadlocked candidates. That election would be presided over by the President of the Senate, who is the Vice President of the United States. If that were to happen, the delegation of each state would cast only one vote and not a vote from each member of the House.

This means that Mississippi would cast one vote just like California, New York and every other state in the Union. So, in order to become president in such a situation, a candidate would have to get a majority of 50 votes in the House of Representatives.

That leads to interesting questions such as, "How do the five Congressmen from Mississippi determine how to cast the vote? Would a member of Congress feel that he or she should vote based on how his or her congressional district voted in the election and not according to which candidate carried the majority of votes in the state?

It's an interesting hypothetical question. It hasn't been done for over a hundred years, and only twice in the history of the United States.

The last time was in 1825 during the election of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States. Adams made a deal with the presidential candidate who was third in the running, Henry Clay, to appoint him as Secretary of State if he would throw his support to Adams. He did, and therefore Adams defeated Andrew Jackson. Because it was a deal made for the presidency, it became known as the 'rotten deal.'

Partly as a result of this "rotten deal," Andrew Jackson stomped John Quincy Adams when he ran for re-election four years later.

I don't think that the presidential election will go to the House this year, and I am confident that the electorial college will have a majority of the votes cast toward one candidate. But, if it did occur, we would need to be very careful and monitor how it is implemented. The possibility brings up a very interesting part of our history and of how the election process works.

According to a statistic sheet he gave the supervisors, the department has 40 maternity patients who are either enrolled in its program or have been routed to a private doctor; 195 family planning patients are seen each month; and 73 women visit to have pregnancy tests (about half are positive).

The department records approximately 115 Well Baby visits and 65 visits by babies who are ill in a month; and 448 childhood immunizations each

About 47 premarital blood tests are given; 51 patients visit to be tested for sexually transmitted diseases; 24 for HIV.

In vaccines and tuberculosis tests: 885 influenza injections were given during flu season; 260 pneumoccocal vaccines are administered in a month; 36 tuberculosis tests are given, and 22 cases or contacts result.

In addition, about 275 clients are certified or recertified each month by a nutritionist and nurse for the Women, Infants and Children program. -The WIC warehouse currently serves 1,258 eligible clients, of which all but 140 are health department patients. Sawyer set the date of May 22 as the completion date for closure of the plant, other than the forge room, which he estimates to be completed by June 30.

In 1983 the $600 million-plus plant was opened at Stennis Space Center.

The Army made public plans to close the plant in December 1988 citing a reduced ammunition budget and a need to buy next generation artillery shell.

The Defense Department placed the plant on a list of 35 military facilities intended for closure in January 1990. Layoffs began in March 1990.

The commission placed the bids under advisement as suggested by Cordon, until he could further investigate the differences in substitute material costs listed.

Zoe Bretzius-Bowers of B&B Services reported to the commission that Hancock County School District was addressing the problem of excess grease in the Stennis Air Park wastewater treatment facility.

She said she and assistant superintendent Eddie Danzey were to travel to Jackson Friday for a meeting with architect John Fields of Tompkins, Hansen, Fields and Muzzi for discussion on repairs to the newly constructed HHS cafeteria.

The cafeteria is believed to be the source of excessive grease buildup at the air park facility.

Niemeyer explained that the bank making the loan will dictate whether or not the home to be purchased can be an existing one or must be built, how much the person must pay in closing costs, what the interest rate is, what the monthly payment is, and other such details.

"Basically, Farmer's Home Administration just writes a guarantee for the loan," he said. This assures the lender (the bank) that if the person given the loan defaults on the payments, the loan still will be

Bay High, St. Stanislaus football squad veterans to face off in May 23 game

BY JANET MCQUEEN In the movie, Field of Dreams, Kevin Costner heard the message, "If you build it, they will come."
St. Stanislaus alumnus

Sean Logan could change the words to, "If you plan it, they will come."

Logan boasts former SSC football players are traveling from Georgia, Texas, Louisiana and points east and west to face former rival Bay High School in a fund-raiser Saturday, May 23 for United Way and the two school athletic booster clubs.

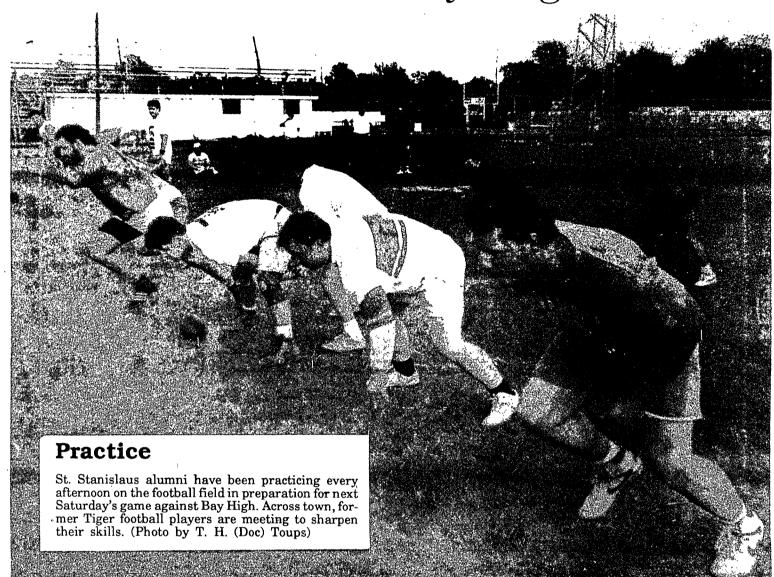

The full contact game at St. Stanislaus field will feature former football standouts from Bay High's Matt Karl (Class of 1968) to 1991 BHS graduates Charlie Mitchell and Willy Moody. Most players have been out of high school from 7-10

"It is an opportunity for all of us to play together," said Logan, whose younger brother, Mark, was on the junior varsity team in the early 80's when he was a varsity starter. "I am looking forward to playing on the same team with some of the guys I looked up to in high

The Rules

1. No blocking below the waist (cut blocks). 2. No blitzing. Only can rush up to five of the defensive line

3. Ball will be spotted on the 20-yard line after a touchdown

4. Dead ball punt. There will be two receivers back to catch the punt and two "headhunters" sent to cover it. Wherever the ball is caught is where it will be spotted. If the receivers mishandle the punt, the two "headhunters" can recover the ball. If the punter mishandles the snap, or if it is a bad snap over the punter's head, it is a dead ball where it hits.

5. Breaking either of the first two rules will result in a 15-yard personal foul penalty.

Seafood Festival time

A weekend of great food, arts, crafts, entertainment offered in Pass Christian

Special to the Echo The people of Pass Christian and St. Paul Parish are in full preparation for the St. Paul Seafood Festival which has become one of the most popular events on the Mississippi Gulf Coast entertainment calendar.

Festival activities will be opened with the Seabee color guard 6:30 Friday evening (May 22) and will continue until 11 Sunday night (May 24) of Memorial Day weekend. Thousands of people from surrounding Gulf Coast communities, Louisiana and Alabama come to Pass Christian every year to take part in the festival which has gained national recognition as one of Mississippi's outstanding festivals, according to the 1992 World Book Encyclopedia.

The festival runs Friday night from 6:30 until 11, Saturday (May 23) from noon until midnight, and Sunday (May 24) from noon until 11 p.m.

In addition to a wide selection of boiled and fried seafood dishes, the festival offers a delicious variety of foods, including gumbo, po-boys, burgers, pizza, egg rolls, and a tempting assortment of grilled shrimp, fish and chicken.

Throughout the weekend dozens of arts and crafts booths will be open, and there will be special games and entertainment for children and adults. Outstanding show bands, dancers, martial arts and gymnastic exhibitions, and vocal groups and soloists from the Gulf Coast area will perform during the festival. Beginning at 7 Friday night, "Magnolia Overdrive" will take the stage overlooking the Gulf for your dancing and listening

On Saturday afternoon at 2 the Diane Desporte Dance Academy will present a program showcasing talents of students of the academy. Ms. Desporte, whose studio is located in Long Beach, is an internationally acclaimed teacher of ballet, jazz, tap, tumbling and jazzercise.

At 3 the Emerald Coast Gymnastic Center will present a gymnastic exhibition, and at 4:30 there will be a martial arts demonstration by Joe Calhoun's "Taekwondo Plus."

The featured vocal group, the Mississippi Coast Chorus of Sweet Adelines International, kicks off the Saturday evening entertainment at 6 on the back stage with a rollicking selection of songs familiar to young and old. They will be followed by 8 by the ever-popular Coast band, "Dr. Rock and the Interns" on the beach front stage.

On Sunday afternoon at 3, Angela Easley will present a program of vocal selections, and from 7-11 p.m., "Four Lane" rounds out the weekend performances and is the closing restival band.

All activities take place on the grounds of St. Paul Catholic Church and school on East Scenic Drive in Pass Christian.

The Seafood Festival is a fund-raising event started several years ago by a small group of parishioners of St. Paul Parish and parents of children who attend St. Paul Catholic Elementary School in Pass Christian. Since Catholic schools, although open to anyone who chooses to attend, are not supported financially by state or federal governments, they rely heavily on fundraising as a means of keeping tuition costs within the reach of parents.

The festival is organized, orchestrated and operated by an all-volunteer army of parishioners, parents and local residents. Proceeds from the festival benefit St. Paul School. Besides food and beverage booths, arts and crafts, games and musical entertainment, this year's festival will offer a Super Raffle. A partial list of prizes includes a Super Nintendo, a weekend Florida Getaway, a CD player, and a $250 gift certificate from Edgewater Mall Merchants.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON -- A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant, colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating pattems, according to one study published in the prestigious British Joural of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids, has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, ""Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear.

In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never hungry. Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Sierra Club

James Price, an oceanographer at the Navy's Operational Oceanography Center at Stennis Space Center, will present a program at the May 28 Sierra Club meeting.

Remote sensing of the environment, especially from space satellite, will be his main topic. A slide presentation will accompany the lecture. NASA's earth science lab also makes extensive use of remote sensing and is located at Stennis, but it is feared that NASA restructuring may force this lab to move to Maryland or California.

Price will give an overview of all types of remote sensing done at Stennis, as well as his own specialty with the Navy.

The public is invited to this free presentation held at the Marine Education Center (located south of U.S. 90 at the west end of the Biloxi-Ocean Springs bridge).

The program begins at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 28. For more information, call 435-2623.

International Trade Club

Wednesday, May 20, the International Trade Club of Mississippi will hold its monthly meeting at The Great Southern Club in Gulfport.

Speaker will be Larry Ashby, president of Regina Vacuum Cleaner Company, located in Long Beach. His company exports a majority of their products to Canada, but they are pursuing new markets in Mexico and Europe. Ashby will discuss his company's strategies to break into these two countries which have enormous potential for American products.

A note from last month's meeting: If you have an interest in information about Venezuelan business opportunities, Ms. Zueleta has delivered written information to Mike Prestia. Contact Prestia or pick up the information at the meeting Wednesday.

A reception will be from 6:30-7 p.m., with dinner at 7:15. Please call Barbara Rhodes, Mississippi State Port Authority, at least 48 hours in advance of the meeting at 865-4300 for reservations.

AFTER GRADUATION, LET'S ENROLL IN THE SCHOOL OF LIFE

Whether the extent of your education has been high school, college, junior college, vocational school or whatever, there comes a time when that institution of learning has taught you all that it has to offer, and then comes graduation. What you do with your life after that depends a great deal on the skills you have acquired, but you should remember that there is a lot more to life than just earning a living. You should be wondering why God put you here, and what purpose He has for you, beyond the limits of your everyday life. For this you need a good postgraduate course, which you can get by attending your House of Worship. Schools can go only so far, but learning about God and the world in which He has placed you can give you the real meaning of life itself. "A wise man will

BSLLT to present 'Best Little Whorehouse'

Director Ed Scanlan of Waveland has gathered an ensemble of talented actors, singers and musicians from across the Coast for Bay St. Louis Little Theatre's upcoming production of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

There are lots of new people," he said. "A couple of the leads have done only one or two other shows. They're not experienced, but they're doing an excellent job.

The popular musical comedy will be staged at BSLLT's Playhouse on Boardman Avenue at 8:15 p.m., May 22, 23, 29 and

The play takes place on the outskirts of a small town in Texas where politicians, businessmen and the local football team enjoy the relaxed company of a bevy of beautiful "girls" carefully supervised by Miss Mona, who insists that her charges behave like ladies regardless of their profession.

URCH

Protected by the gutsy sheriff and tolerated by the community, Miss Mona's "House of Ill Repute" thrives, until a Biblebelt TV vigilante makes a statewide issue of the whorehouse and forces the reluctant, side-stepping governor to close it down.

Larry L. King and Peter Masterson wrote the book for the play. Carol Hall wrote the music and lyrics.

Hummable tunes from the show include "A Little Old Pissant Country Place," "Girl, You're A Woman," "24 Hours of Lovin'," "Good Old Girl," "The Bus From Amarillo," and "Hard

Beasnett chosen for NEH seminar

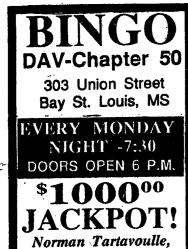

A Gulf Coast artist and former Pass Christian art teacher, Elizabeth Beasnett, has been selected as one of 15 participants in the National Endowment for the Humanities 1992 summer seminar for school teachers; "The Major Paintings of Winslow Homer.'

Dr. David Tatham, seminar director, informed Beasnett she is one of two art teachers selected.

Participants come from such diverse disciplines as linguistics, languages, literature, archaeology, history, theory, and criticism of the arts, comparative religion and teachers of the arts.

The summer seminars are offered to school teachers to provide opportunity for advanced study of significant texts and master works.

The seminar will include reading, writing, reflection, and frequent formal and informal discussions with the director and with numerous guest speakers in the fields related to the history and culture of post Civil War America.

NASA, Johns Hopkins unveil system to help visually impaired patients

A pair of computer-driven glasses, derived from the space program, that can help millions of Americans afflicted with certain lcw vision problems, was unveiled in Baltimore, Md.

The Low Vision Enhancement Project is a product of NASA's Technology Transfer Program in cooperation with NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center and the Johns Hopkins Wilmer Eye Institute, Baltimore.

Scientists from Stennis Space Center and the Wilmer Eye Institute used NASA technology developed for computer processing of satellite images along with head-mounted vision enhancement imaging systems originally generated for potential use on Space Station Freedom.

This transfer of technology will make it possible to improve the visual capability of lowvision patients by appropriately enhancing and altering images to compensate for the patient's impaired eyesight.

This is what we call an enabling technology. It will have an impact far beyond this one application," said Dr. Doug Rickman, NASA's Low Vision project manager at Stennis Space Center's Science and Technology Laboratory.

It is estimated that more than three million Americans today are visually handicapped. By the turn of the century, this number is expected to grow as the population ages. Yet, more than 80 percent of those who are legally blind retain some vision. Many of these potentially could be helped by this new technology.

The low vision enhancement system consists of a computer, an auxiliary camera and a pair of wrap-around video screens worn like eyeglasses by the person suffering from a particular visual malady.

The camera sends the images to a computer-based system. The computer, already programmed to correct for the visual problem of the individual, manipulates the images and sends them back to the patient. They are displayed on small video screens which have roughly the same field of view as eyeglasses. "But instead of looking through ground glass, you'll be looking through a computer," said Rickman.

One example, Rickman explained, is the brightness of white paper with black print, such as in books and magazines, making it difficult for some to see properly.

"If the paper was black and the print white, they would be able to function much better," he said. "For many years, people have been going to their eye care specialists and the physician would say, 'I know what your problem is. I know what's going to happen to you, but there isn't anything I can to to help you."

Glasses do not correct this type of problem, but by using a computer-driven system, the white of a page and the black of the print can be reversed, allowing the patient to visually function more normally.

The low vision enhancement system will provide customtailored images of the outside world for low-vision patients. The system is expected to be used by people who have lost their peripheral or side field vision. This problem is associated with glaucoma, an increase of fluid pressure inside the eye center of the retina.

The low vision enhancement system is expected to be available to the public in about 18 months and cost about $3,000-$4,000. For information about medical applications, contact the Lions Vision Center at (401) 614-0992.

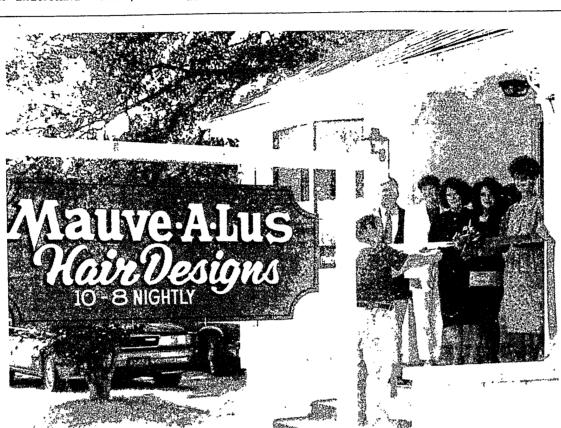

Representatives from the Wilmer Eve Institute, an internationally recognized academic ophthalmologic center specializing in basic research and clinical care, first met with NASA officials in 1984 to see if any technology was available to better understand visual performance in low vision and to sevelop improved prosthetic visual that damages the optic nerve, and retinitis pigmentosa, a progressive degeneration of the retina, the delicate lightsensitive nerve layer lining the

The system also could benefit., patients with central vision loss, the part of vision normally used for reading. These patients may have macular degeneration associated with aging or diabetic retinopathy, in which diabetes causes swelling and leakage of fluid in the NASA and the Wilmer Eye Institute than began developing a laboratory-based, realtime image processing system to enhance life for low-vision sufferers.

Stennis Space Center developed the low vision enhancement system design and the computer software. Stennis manages NASA's portion of the Low Vision Enhancement Project for the Office of Commercial Programs' Technology Transfer Program, which seeks to broaden and accelerate technology transfer in the public

"The quick look data looks good." These were the findings of Mississippi Test Facility personnel after scanning tapes of performance obtained during last Friday's full duration acceptance firing of the S-11 Saturn V-Apollo second phase moon shot booster rocket at Mississippi Test Facility. If the data proves successful the component will be shipped out on Feb. 5 via river barge to Michoud. There it will be off-loaded and put on board a sea going barge for passage to Cape Kennedy. The component is scheduled to become part of the first Saturn V vehicle whose launch date is anticipated to be in the second quarter of this year.
